The SOKS President Josh Peck. All photos by Ron Smith.

Well, first of all it's definitely not footwear, and if it was it would be twenty one years old and would have probably worn out long ago. This SOKS is far from wearing out and being discarded.

Twenty one years ago most of the athletic activities for youth were located twenty miles to the north. A forty mile round trip plus associated costs of participation was a deterrent for many working families with children. And there wasn't much to do around Scottsville other than Little League baseball, which was good, and skateboarding on the public sidewalks, which was not.

Gail Bodine and Lynn Spangler were mothers who thought the area's children needed an outlet for all the energy they seemed to have. Gail and Lynn talked and decided community recreational sports, which included, but not limited to soccer, for all kids was badly needed. The decided to create those opportunities in Scottsville and, from that vision, Scottsville Youth Soccer was born.

Scottsville Organization for Kids Soccer, SOKS, today more commonly referred to as Scottsville Youth Soccer, has grown, according to Tom Green, "from a few dozen kids on two or three fields to a league of over 200 kids, ages 3-15, and achieved all the positive goals that the original vision for SOKS incorporated." A visit to Dorrier Park on any given fall Saturday is testimony to the popularity of soccer and the participation level. There are literally hundreds of kids and adults bringing together a spirit of community.

Just a year old when SOKS was first organized, Josh Peck is the new president of the organization. A graduate of Fluvanna High School, Josh serves on the Scottsville Town Council, the town's Planning Commission, and works full time. He coaches a team of 8, 9 and 10 year old soccer players. He has been coaching eight of the past nine years; he took a break last year but is back at it this year.

Working with youth is something Josh finds rewarding. For almost three years he worked at the local Boys and Girls Club as the Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) coordinator.

Josh explained that there are twenty teams which constitute almost 150 children aged 4-16. He cites "the recreational nature and low costs ($35 registration fee which includes the team jersey) and the fact that all skill levels are accepted." "If you want to play," he said, "you can play!"

Josh added that, "players not only learn to play soccer, they learn how to be part of a team, a community and always focusing on the positivity and equity."

The SOKS mission statement's first line says it all: "The mission of SOKS is to provide soccer opportunities for ALL kids, regardless of skill level, gender, race or financial situation."

Josh Peck is dedicated to the youth of Scottsville. He is dedicated to the Town of Scottsville. Josh is the type of individual you can trust. And, he is there to answer your questions and help to get you child involved in a positive activity.

To get more information on SOKS you can contact them at

And if you want to see our youth in action go to Dorrier Park any Saturday morning this fall.

Meet the New Principal

By Ron Smith
Correspondant

She's been assistant principal at Charlottesville Albemarle Technical Education Center, Hollymead Elementary and Burley Middle Schools, and the first director of Club Yancey. Now Staci England has been named principal of Scottsville Elementary School.

Originally from the west, and we are talking Utah and Nevada, Staci came to Virginia eighteen years ago for a sabbatical. But her journey to the east coast has been very interesting.

She was recruited out of high school by the U.S. Air Force Academy to play basketball but ran track instead. After two years in Colorado Springs, she fulfilled her obligation to her church and served as a missionary to Uruguay for the next two years.

When she returned from South America she enrolled in Brigham Young University from which she received her BS degree in science. She also coached volley ball while there. After earning her Masters in Science from Utah State she took some time off to visit Virginia. She liked what she found here and stayed.

England ran the Four H program for Charlottesville/Albemarle and then moved to the Yancey position. Her mother had taught kindergarten and first grade in Colorado for thirty seven years. Education was in her genes.

Principal's Message

It has been such a pleasure to start getting to know the Scottsville Elementary School community over the past month! I have enjoyed meeting with families, community leaders, and students throughout our area and will continue to do so during the year. It has been energizing to learn more about all of the wonderful staff, students, and families who are part of our school!

Many people have been working hard at school to get it ready. Our terrific custodians have worked tirelessly giving the buildings a deep cleaning and prepping everything. The wonderful office staff have moved all of the records and materials into the new office space and have helped facilitate summer school and kinder camp. Also, teachers provided enriching and fun experiences for all the students who participated. Amazingly, they have done all of this with construction going on both in and outside the school. The county project manager keeps assuring me that all of the construction work will be completed by the start of school, so keep your fingers crossed!

Our teachers have also been busy this summer with a variety of activities to support students and to further their own professional development. In June, several attended the school division's Curriculum, Assessment, and Instruction Institute to deepen their understanding of instructional strategies and they have been planning hands on projects and other active learning for the coming year.

I'm pleased to share that we have some wonderful new staff members. Briana Carel will teach Bright Stars and comes to us from Greer Elementary School where she taught kindergarten. Kelsey Richardson will be our school counselor and has recently graduated with her master's degree from UVA. Also, I am delighted to have Elizabeth Cox rejoin us as a 5th grade teacher.

I am delighted to be at Scottsville Elementary and I am looking forward to a great year!

*Your principal,

has 230 young people for which to be a guiding light, motivator, friend and someone to look up to. So what's her plan for her students? That plan, she says, "is joy."

To England joy is a feeling of accomplishment. She want to "build great citizens who love learning," she said. The mascot at Scottsville is the tiger, so her theme is "Building Tigers." Her challenge, she stated, is "how do we foster joy in the productive struggle...Learning should not be hard" and she "wants her students to feel joy with accomplishment and worth." She wants to see the students "gain self-confidence as they go through the productive struggle; this is what brings joy."

During what free time she has, England likes to kayak, hike, and read. She is also a wood worker and has a shop in her home.

Principal Staci England is a goal oriented educator. She received her Education Specialist credentials from the University of Virginia and is currently working towards her doctorate. She wants her students to succeed and know the joy in what they accomplish.

She believes that "despite what we read in the papers and see on television, there is a lot of good in the world and a lot of good people out there." As principal of Scottsville Elementary School she wants to add to that good. And that would be a joyful thing!
