The Fluvanna SPCA will be closed to the public until further notice. We are trying to do our part to help cut down on the spread of COVID-19, and with our animals' and employees' best interests in mind we are trying to reduce foot traffic to help keep our employees healthy. The animals at the shelter will continue to receive wonderful care just as they normally do, so no need to worry. If you are interested in adopting or if you would like to drop off donations during this time that we are closed to the public, you can make an appointment to do so by contacting our shelter manager: manager@fspca.org. We appreciate your understanding and support during this difficult time for everyone, and we will be sure to keep you updated as soon as we will be open again to the public.

THIS WEEK'S PET IS CHUCKLES! APPROX. 5

I came to the shelter very sick and the nice staff has worked hard to make me better. Now that I am feeling much better, I am told I can find a family of my very own. Oh how wonderful that would be. I used to be an outdoor kitty, but I now love being indoors too. I use my litter box well here, but I would probably need some help knowing where to go in my new home. When I lived outside I was too scared to let people near me. However, since coming to the shelter, I have learned that people are not as scary as I thought and I love them now. I would need a home with NO DOGS, but I do like being around other felines. I am current on all shots, micro-chipped and neutered.

Order to stay at home has some protesting

BY PAGE H. GIFFORD
CORRESPONDENT

Governor Ralph Northam, announced a statewide executive stay-at-home order on March 30 to protect Virginia residents during the COVID-19 pandemic. It is in effect until June 10. On April 17, protesters stormed the capital to call an end to the stay-at-home order.

The vocal minority saw the order as a violation of their First Amendment rights, equating it with house arrest while a few voiced concerns about economic hardships caused by the imposed shut down. They believe that the stay-at-home order targets blue collar workers disproportionately while white-collar professionals stay at home and work and they pay the price.

Meanwhile, the federal government keeps rolling out economic relief via stimulus packages and the states are begging for support and funding from the federal government as well. All this while the coronavirus sweeps across the U.S. and the cases grow as well as the death toll.

"People are frightened and angry. Frightened because they cannot pay bills or support their families. The same people are always hurt. These are also the people who are uninformed, and mistrust educated professionals, including scientists," said Sandy Uribe. "Fear, anger, and misinformation are a recipe for trouble. People who are feeling fear and anger and are uninformed are not thinking, only reacting."

Protesters argue that flu and drugs kill more people but health experts countered that argument with caution and facts that some refuse to accept. A majority of Virginians and Americans across the political spectrum are in favor of keeping these stay-at-home orders in place. The issue has become divisive and a political volleyball.

Unlike shelter-in-place orders, people have a choice, they are not forced to stay inside their homes until further notice. In Fluvanna, people are following the guidelines and exercising caution and practicing self-isolation, particularly since cases seem to be growing in an area of the county.

"We might also consider that the idea of "freedom" has led to much manipulation of the populace. We hear that our freedoms are being taken away and we are supposed to rise and take action. No one ever defines "freedom" nor mentions the responsibilities that it engenders." Uribe gives an example: one of the photos of a protest included a woman carrying a sign that read "It's My Body."

"In this hyper-individualistic society there is no thought about how her actions might affect those around her, her family, and her friends if she happens to be a carrier." She points out that there are other issues, misunderstandings, and manipulation by certain sources that fanned the flames of protest. "We might ask, is it rational that those who are angry, frightened and misinformed choose in their desperation to react by taking to the streets endangering their own lives and those of the people around them?"

She quoted Governor Andrew Cuomo, who used Edward Gibbon's quote in one of his morning updates. "When the freedom they wished for most was freedom from responsibility, then (they) ceased to be free."

Warren Groeger, has two daughters on the front lines in New York, a registered nurse and a geriatric physician but asks how we strike a balance between safety and economy.

"This is a circumstance where two very important issues need to be handled with thoughtful policy - not politically. Public health is necessary to provide the proper environment in which we can perform well economically. Equally important is supporting economic activity to avoid a devastating downturn, a lasting depression," he said. "These two concerns mean we need level-headed leaders and citizens to implement and acknowledge a return to normalcy will not be immediate and without some missteps. Some areas will open sooner than others, and some that open may need to revert if a flare-up occurs." Groeger adds that all available resources must be directed towards effective antiviral drugs and a vaccine. Until these are found, he believes we face the difficult trade-off between a certifiably safe environment and a supporting economy.

Leslie Truex would be considered one of those who can stay home and work.

"My opinion is to be safe rather than sorry. Of course, I'm not having any financial issues right now, so I recognize that it's easy for me to say. With that said, all those "liberators" I think are missing the point of stay at home orders. We all have freedom, but we also have responsibilities." She believes since they have not experienced it firsthand or lost a loved one there is no need to stay home or they have the right to risk their own lives. "I don't know if they don't believe in the science or don't care, but they could be a carrier and infect their grocery worker who is risking their life for minimum wage and no healthcare. What about their freedom? What about when the protester or someone in their family gets sick and dies especially if they die because the medical establishment is overwhelmed and can't meet the

RUDY TALKS TAXES

BY RUDY GARCIA, OWNER, RIVANNA WOODS FINANCIAL / TAX SERVICES

Tax Savvy Moves to Consider Now

Who would ever have foreseen a time when petroleum companies would pay you to take their oil? This phenomena underscores the concept that within every problem there is opportunity. Here are some tax strategies to think about during the coronavirus pandemic.

Look into Roth rollovers

If you have high balances in tax-deferred retirement accounts, consider rolling them into tax-free Roth accounts. Since you have to pay tax on the funds you convert, the lower value of the accounts means less tax is due. Plus if your income is lower, the tax hit will also be lower. The good news here is that growth in these funds when the economy recovers will now be tax-free!

Consider removing a dependent

Stimulus payments help most families with kids, except if they are over age 16. By removing them as a dependent and them filing their own tax return, they may be eligible for a $1,200 stimulus payment from the federal government.

Capture capital losses, then reinvest

Have a stock you like long-term, but it took a hit? Consider selling it, then repurchasing after 30 days. This will avoid the wash sale rules in the tax code. This technique can lower your cost and it can also be used to offset other investments you sell at a gain.

Time to buy or sell?

The value of real property of all kinds will be moving. Some will move up, some down. So now is a time to think about buying or selling. If you currently own property, don't forget to look into the like-kind exchange rules to help defer any tax bite!

Leverage penalty-free withdrawals

You can now take up to $100,000 out of a retirement account and avoid the 10% early withdrawal penalty. Even better, the income tax on these withdrawals can be paid over three years and you can always repay the money over that same time period. There may be planning opportunities around this added flexibility, but only if you review your options and correctly use the funds.

It is more important than ever to keep up with rule changes and be on the lookout for tax planning opportunities. As always, if you have any questions call us at 434-442-4404. We are happy to help you navigate the system even if we aren't doing your taxes! It is all part of our being a part of this great Fluvanna Community. Our Fluvanna County Resident discount program is extended until July 15th! 15% off for all Fluvanna Residents.

needs of the sick which is the whole purpose of staying home. There are families not losing one but multiple members to this disease. They're dying alone because their families can't be with them."

She said that the country values the sacrifices of the military, but can't sacrifice an outing for a few months to save the world. She was stunned by protesters' disrespect for the sacrifice and the risks health care workers are taking to save lives. She wonders what the consequences and the outcome will be for the protesters. "Think of what our grandparents had to do to protect this nation. They risked their lives by going to war. All we're asked to do is stay home and watch TV, hang with our families, or do hobbies."

Groeger added that "it has often been said that facing a common enemy can test the mettle of a society. Well, here it is COVID-19. In the words of Ben Franklin, "We must all hang together, or most assuredly, we will all hang separately."

Susan Lang's comments were equally profound.

"Cries of frustration, to return, to go back. The nature of this virus will not conform to wishes or demands, it will continue until interrupted by science," she said. "Our social structure revolves around commerce, and to stop that abruptly seems extreme to many, not personally affected by the physical threat of not being able to survive. As a society, we are going through the stages of grief. The grief of a great loss, beyond our control, of our common functioning world."

Lang believes what is driving the protests for some is fear and passion in not being able to provide for their families, but for others, their fear and passion lie in political driven ideals. "But there is a much larger silent protest, driven by love and trust in scientific innovation. "There are no easy, fast solutions to fix the situation we are all going through. Hopefully, we take this time to set aside our desires, and join together in thinking outside the box and find innovative solutions to safely open the doors of commerce for our society."

She ends with a quote from Anne Frank who said, "...I still believe, in spite of everything, that people are really good at heart. It is utterly impossible for me to build my hopes on a foundation of chaos, suffering, and death."

Coronavirus concerns

As an elderly retired U.S. Army veteran, I am very much concerned about how local citizens are responding to the threat of the coronavirus pandemic. During my military career I can attribute my survival in battle to the training and equipment the Army provided, plus my self-discipline as a soldier. The coronavirus is a very different kind of enemy. It is invisible and very aggressive. Currently, the only defense we have to protect ourselves is to follow the guidelines set forth by local, state, and federal governments. The above information may appear redundant. However, I felt it was necessary to stress the guidelines because while shopping I noticed that some local businesses do not require their employees to wear masks or gloves. After addressing the issue with the business managers and owners, I was told the following:

- My employees are not elderly.
- I donated to COVID-19 fund.
- I will not comply with the recommendation until I have to by law.

This is not some game. Stepping up to the new challenges of COVID-19 is a matter of life and death. To date, Fluvanna County has had more positive COVID-19 cases or more COVID-19 deaths than more populous neighboring counties. People who do not show efforts toward compliance with the recommendations while out in public are either not informed or don't care for their personal health or others' well-being. In one instance, I asked a disabled veteran who was going shopping if he was going to wear a mask. He asked me if the Veterans Administration would give him one. My reply was that I didn't know but they will bury you for free and give your survivor $250 for a headstone.

I would recommend that if you see any businesses not following the recommended COVID-19 guidelines, do not shop at these establishments. They are not interested in protecting your health, only in making a buck. Many reliable places are adhering to health guidelines, they are worthy of your business.

- Al Lechak, retired Army MSG, Palmyra

Child abuse prevention month

April is National Child Abuse Prevention Month. With the coronavirus in full swing, many annual events and articles to raise awareness of this social issue were canceled.

Child abuse is a difficult and broad subject to discuss. The term encompasses: Physical and emotional abuse/neglect, medical neglect, and sexual abuse/exploitation. There's often debate about what truly constitutes child abuse among the first two points, but most people can agree on what sexual abuse is and why these cases require intervention.

What people don't agree on is how to prevent child sexual abuse.

One may say, "Teach children about 'stranger danger.'" However, 95 percent of survivors know their perpetrators.

One may say, "Let the family decide what to teach their children." However, over 30 percent of perpetrators are family members of the survivor.

Within the 2018 fiscal year, Virginia Child Protective Services reported nearly 900 founded cases of child sexual abuse. One in four girls and one in seven boys will experience a form of sexual violation before their 18th birthday.

So what can we do to prevent child sexual abuse? Listen to survivors.

Always listen to survivors.

Survivor Erin Merryn created Erin's Law in 2011, which seeks to implement evidence-based and age-appropriate personal body safety education in public schools. Merryn recalled all the ways she was taught to handle emergency situations, but she never learned what to do or what to say while she was experiencing sexual abuse. Her only narrative was from her perpetrator – Don't tell, you'll be in big trouble. No one will believe you. I will kill you, your parents, or sisters.

Erin's Law in Virginia currently allows sexual abuse education. Our children need to be educated on the true narrative – You will be believed, and you will be safe.

This can only happen if we expand Virginia's resources for addressing this kind of abuse, expand our public school curriculum to require personal body safety education, and empower children with the knowledge that their body is their own and no one has the right to hurt them.

The Rotary Club of Fluvanna County is filled with People of Action. When we found out there was a need to support the local foodbank at MACAA, we sprang into action! We immediately did a needs assessment and determined that there was a need for additional foodstuffs as well as equipment. Club member and local Realtor Betsy Gunnels organized a massive Lake Monticello wide Community Drive-By Food Drive. Hundreds of community members donated food and dozens more helped our Rotary Club separate and repackage thousands of pounds of food. Additionally, our Club Foundation obtained a grant and purchased over $5,000 worth of much needed new equipment to help MACAA increase their capacity. Our Rotarians are truly People of Action and together with our Community we Fight Hunger!

We want to recognize and thank the following Rotarians and Community Members who helped make this great event a reality! We also want to give a very special thanks to Long and Foster Lake Monticello for printing the thousands of flyers that were delivered and to the Lake Monticello Owner's Association for promoting the event in the email blast to the community!

Clinic finds no new cases of the virus

Almost two dozen Fluvanna residents tested at drive-thru

BY HEATHER MICHON
CORRESPONDENT

Almost two dozen area residents were tested for COVID-19 at a drive-thru clinic at Central Elementary School in Palmyra on Saturday (April 25).

All 22 tests came back negative for the virus.

Jessica Salah, Health Emergency Coordinator for the Thomas Jefferson Health District (TJHD) said this pilot test for future drive-thru clinics had been a successful collaboration between her department and other groups.

"We had a great working relationship with Fluvanna County," she said, including the sheriff's office and parks & recreation. "It was so easy."

This allowed TJHD to focus on collecting test samples, which were sent to the University of Virginia for analysis. "We're happy to see these people tested negative," she said.

Had there been any positive results, this would have triggered a call from one of TJHD's case investigators.

A case investigator helps the patient establish the onset of symptoms and gives the patient and those they might be living with "full guidance on what to do" in terms of isolation and quarantine.

Investigators also work with the patient to draw a list of people they might have come in contact with before they realized they were sick. Those individuals can then be informed of their exposure and given guidance on testing and isolation.

Contact tracing in "an extensive process" and most TJHD staff has now been trained as case investigators.

This approach has helped identify many individuals who may have had contact with Envoy at the Village, the Fork Union nursing home that has become an epicenter for the virus in Central Virginia.

Initially, the criteria for testing at the clinic included contact with Envoy. When they received few calls on that basis, they opened the testing to the wider community. Salah said she thinks they had already identified the majority of people who might have been exposed to the virus at the facility.

The lack of new cases from the testing is good news, but Salah urged Fluvanna residents to follow the guidelines to reduce exposure to the virus. "Definitely wash your hands, stay home if you're sick, and if you're not sure...stay home."

She also encouraged people to stay healthy with plenty of good food and exercise.

And while it remains important to keep a physical distance of six or more feet from others, "we want people to be social," she said. "You can still talk to your neighbor across the fence."

If you think you may have COVID-19 and need testing, you can call the TJHD Hotline at 434-972-6261 for assistance.

Five area students earn electric co-op scholarships

PRESS RELEASE

Five Central Virginia high school seniors have each earned $1,000 college scholarships awarded by the Education Scholarship Foundation of the Virginia, Maryland & Delaware Association of Electric Cooperatives. The recipients are:

- Shaniya Johnson of Appomattox, a student at Appomattox County High School
- Brooke Nazar of Palmyra, a student at Fluvanna County High School
- Rachel Hoefner of Palmyra, a student at Fluvanna County High School

- Alisha Hunsaker of Keswick, a student at Fluvanna County High School
- Malena Stallard of Palmyra, a student at Fluvanna County High School

The students were eligible for consideration because their parents are members of Central Virginia Electric Cooperative (CVEC). "The cost of college and post-graduation training programs are steadily rising and CVEC recognizes that seniors in our rural communities can benefit from scholarships to help offset those costs," says Gary Wood, president and CEO of CVEC. "It is such a pleasure to see that five of our high school seniors were selected as recipients." Scholarship recipients were chosen based on a competitive screening process that considers financial need (40 percent), academic achievement (40 percent) and community involvement (20 percent). Applicants must be a senior graduating from either high school or home school in 2020.

They must also provide evidence of their acceptance into a post-high school educational institution or program. These grants can be used to pay for tuition, fees and books. "We commend these students on their outstanding academic achievements," said Russell G. "Rusty" Brown, chair of the VMDAEC Education Scholarship Foundation Committee and vice chairman of the board of directors at Northern Neck Electric Cooperative. "Our electric cooperatives are delighted to provide support to these worthy students, as they represent a future generation of leaders in their communities."

This year, the Foundation awarded 57 Worth Hudson scholarships of $1,000 each to students who live in areas served by electric cooperatives in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. The scholarships are named in honor of Hudson, the Foundation's first chairman. Since 2001, the Foundation has provided approximately 780 scholarships totaling more than $740,000 to aspiring college students as well as to the next generation of electric lineworkers.

The Foundation is funded through tax-deductible donations and bequests from individuals, proceeds from benefit fundraising events and CoBank's Sharing Success Program.

Lake provisionally approved for $670,000 grant/loan under federal program

BY HEATHER MICHON
CORRESPONDENT

The Lake Monticello Owners Association (LMOA) has been approved for a $670,000 grant/loan under the Paycheck Protection Program (PPP), a $350 billion fund created by the federal government to cover small business payrolls for up to eight weeks. If used for payroll, rent and other approved expenses the loan can be forgiven.

But because nothing is simple these days, it is not clear how soon the association will receive the funding. Days after the grant was provisionally approved, the program ran out of money. Congress approved a fresh influx of cash, with no way to say how long it will last.

"It's a brand new program and we are working our way through it," said General Manager Steven Hurwitz in an email in late April. "Because of that, it is hard to say exactly when the process involving LMOA will be complete."

News that the association had won provisional approval for the grant was announced at a virtual meeting of the Board of Directors on April 14. About 35 people dialed in to listen to the directors discuss the short- and long-term implication of the COVID 19 pandemic.

"We're just in the beginning of what's going to be a two to three-year epidemic," said Director Mike Harrison, "and we're going to have to be very creative in our actions over the next few years."

At the moment, all LMOA staff remains on the payroll, said General Manager Steve Hurwitz. The PPP grant will aid staff retention for the near future, although Hurwitz said he and his staff have been looking at furloughs "should financial conditions require it."

Hurwitz indicated the association was in fairly good shape at the moment. "We've collected a substantial amount of dues so far this year." He reported that the Food and Beverage Department had switched to takeout only and was doing well. The golf course was scheduled for a limited re-opening on April 20.

However, many amenities remain shuttered, and will likely remain closed at least until Governor Ralph Northam's stay-at-home directive expires on June 10.

"We're definitely going to have revenue shortfalls in golf, maybe in dues, and in other areas," said Director Jay Hinkle.

Director Tom Braithwaite said the pool season, which normally opens around Memorial Day, will be impacted. Not only will it be shortened by almost a month, residents may be reluctant to buy passes to the often-crowded facility. The shutdown could also impact tennis and pickleball court rentals, golf tournaments, and other traditional sources of seasonal revenue.

After the summer, the financial picture becomes even more murky.

"It's going to be a real problem," said Director Rich Berringer. "Lots of people are going to be hurting."

He saw potential for losses in home sales, as job losses cause current residents to move out and potential residents to defer home-buying until the economy stabilizes. Higher unemployment could also impact the collection of annual dues.

This will challenge future boards to dramatically reduce operations to critical infrastructure, such as roads and lake water management.

"It is what it is," said Berringer. "We didn't start it."

Towards the end of the meeting, Harrison addressed some of the questions surrounding the delayed annual meeting, originally scheduled for the end of June. Three directors' seats are up for election.

He said it might be possible to hold the meeting sometime in September, but no date has been set. Until that time, the current board will stay in their seats.

The Fluvanna SPCA will be closed to the public until further notice. We are trying to do our part to help cut down on the spread of COVID-19, and with our animals' and employees' best interests in mind we are trying to reduce foot traffic to help keep our employees healthy. The animals at the shelter will continue to receive wonderful care just as they normally do, so no need to worry. If you are interested in adopting or if you would like to drop off donations during this time that we are closed to the public, you can make an appointment to do so by contacting our shelter manager: manager@fspca.org. We appreciate your understanding and support during this difficult time for everyone, and we will be sure to keep you updated as soon as we will be open again to the public.

THIS WEEK'S PET IS: DARLA! 10 YR LAB MIX

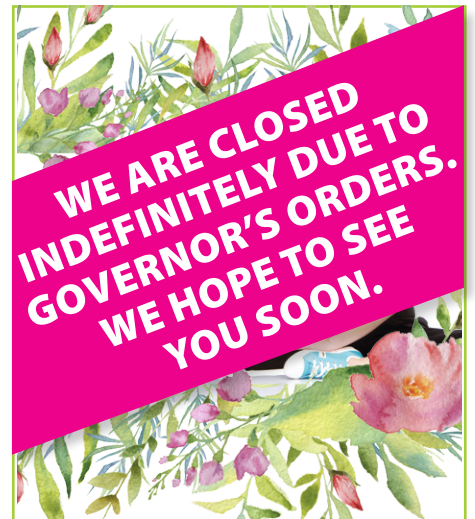

I am very new here at the shelter, so my new friends are still learning things about me. They mention that I am a really sweet and a calm girl. I am about 10 years old and just want to be lazy. However, I do get lonely when no one is around and I sometimes whine about it. I am looking for a family to call my very own.

I am currently in a foster home to get time out of the shelter, but they are not in a position to adopt me. If you would like to meet me, please call the shelter to arrange a visit. I am up to date on all vaccines & preventatives and am just awaiting my spay.
