Public hearing on redistricting set for Dec. 1

Supervisors split on number of districts

BY HEATHER MICHON
CORRESPONDENT

With around six weeks to go until the deadline for redistricting, the Board of Supervisors seems far from a consensus on the best way to redraw the county's electoral map.

A public hearing has been set for Dec. 1 at 7 p.m., and as part of the formal notice for the hearing, they were tasked with choosing from one of five maps presented at earlier meetings.

This was not meant as a final decision, but as more of a placeholder or starting point for public discussion.

As their own discussion continued, it became clear that there are different ideas about what that final map should contain.

There are three basic options under discussion: staying at the current five districts but redrawing the current boundaries to balance the number of residents living in each district, increasing to six districts, or moving all the way to seven districts.

County staff has prepared five maps, with two options each for five and seven districts, and one for six districts.

Tony O'Brien (Rivanna), who sits on the redistricting committee, proposed one of the five-district maps. Holding at five, he argued, limited significant changes for residents, was unlikely to face any legal challenges, and still allowed for some flexibility.

"I like the idea of being supervisor for some rural areas and some urban areas," said Mozell Booker (Fork Union). Her district would pick up some of the areas around Lake Monticello under a five-district plan. She said that part of her role as supervisor would be to bridge some of the divides between rural Fluvanna residents and those at the Lake.

Both Don Weaver (Cunningham) and Patricia Eager (Palmyra) voiced their support for six districts. Weaver pointed to a period in the early 2000s where the Lake had two supervisors in one district "and it worked well then," he said. Eager said six districts gave the Lake area representation proportional to its population.

Chair Mike Sheridan (Cunningham) maintained his support for seven districts, saying none of the other scenarios would represent residents equally.

O'Brien's motion for five districts failed by a vote of 3-2.

Eager then moved that they adopt the six-district map.

"Again, I think six is an enormous mistake," said O'Brien. "It does not serve the residents of the county very well. If we're not going to be at five, then I'm in favor of seven. But I think six is a terrible idea for the county and a terrible idea for the Lake."

Booker agreed, referring back to the period before the 2010 redistricting when Rivanna had two supervisors. Not only were there deadlocks on the board, but other county residents had been angered by the Lake having two representatives.

The motion then passed 3-2.

Residents will still be able to speak on any of the five maps under consideration at the public hearing on Dec. 1. These maps can be viewed on the county website.

Falun Gong

At the start of the meeting, supervisors passed an unusual resolution "to educate Fluvanna residents and the medical community on the risks of traveling to China for organ transplants in light of recent reports of state-sponsored organ harvesting from prisoners of conscience."

Falun Gong is a religious movement established in China in 1992. Hundreds of thousands of people around the world follow the practice, which combines meditation, exercises, and philosophy.

The government of China sees Falun Gong as a threat and has arrested and has jailed hundreds of Chinese practitioners since the 1990s. By the early 2000s, there were multiple reports that some of these prisoners were being killed and harvested for their organs.

Several international investigations judge claims to be true, although the true number of victims is unknown.

Virginia-based Falun Gong practitioners Tiny Tang and Jinsun Bae have been visiting localities around Virginia to talk about the issue and encourage supervisors to pass these resolutions. They spoke in Fluvanna during public comments at the Oct. 20 meeting.

On Wednesday, supervisors voted 5-0 in favor of the resolution.

Letters to the editor

Supervisors can't do math!

I truly appreciate the work various groups did in drawing new district maps based on the 2020 census information. What I don't appreciate – nor understand in the least – is the thought process by a number of our supervisors that six districts is the best solution. Anyone who went through grade school math knows that you do not pick even numbers for any decision making because the probability of a tie is too great – especially in a small number. Six? Really? Did you forget basic math? Three versus three for just about any decision in front of the board and absolutely nothing gets done.

You may not like all of the decisions our board has made over the years – I don't – but at least they have made decisions. Six districts allows them to not make decisions, thus keeping our county in the muddy backwater.

–Catherine Garcia, Fork Union

Redistricting concern

I am writing to express my concern with the recent discussions about redistricting. If you have watched any of our School Board meetings over the past few years, you would have seen how contentious our decision-making process can be with five members. I cannot imagine how we would have moved forward had our decisions been split with an even number of votes. Perhaps the Board of Supervisors could make an even number work. The School Board would be stalled on many decisions, as we are when one member of our Board is absent and only four are present to vote. Any decision that you make for your Board will affect ours as well.

Fairchild, Rittenhouse and Murray-Key win

BY RUTHANN CARR, HEATHER MICHON
CORRESPONDENTS

Chris Fairchild will represent Cunningham on the Fluvanna Board of Supervisors.

Fairchild was opposed by write-in candidate Jason Hamshar but carried the district on Nov. 2 with 2,071 votes or 86.62 percent of the vote, according to unofficial returns. Hamshar received 320 votes or 13.38 percent.

Charles Rittenhouse (Cunningham) easily defeated challenger Eric Anderson. Anderson said this morning, "I want to congratulate the winner in the Cunningham district, Charles Rittenhouse, on his re-election to the School Board."

Anderson added, "I hope the new Board can find ways to come together and do the work needed by the students and the people of Fluvanna County. My profound thanks to my many supporters in the community, to my friends and family for all they have put up with through the campaign season."

Rittenhouse received 1,662 votes or 64.10 percent to Anderson's 881 votes or 33.98 percent.

Gequetta "G" Murray-Key claimed victory over Darrell Byers in the race for the Rivanna district seat vacated by Shirley Stewart's retirement. Murray-Key received 1,397 votes or 52.9 percent to Byers' 1,225 votes or 46.44 percent, according to unofficial returns.

Incumbent supervisors Mike Sheridan (Columbia) and Tony O'Brien (Rivanna) ran unopposed and will return for four-year terms. Andrew Pullen (Columbia) ran unchallenged for a seat on the school board.

Ah, school board races: long the ugly stepsister to gubernatorial, mayoral, and council races. But not in 2021, not since culture-war influencers decided to target school boards and other ultra-local races.

Pullen and Rittenhouse cast themselves as a team standing strong against a tide of what they frame as radical ideas that can be harmful to children. Pullen is a firefighter and Rittenhouse is a contractor.

Byers, a captain and division commander with the Albemarle County Sheriff's Department, aligned himself with Pullen and Rittenhouse championing parents being more included in educational choices. All three have spoken out against mask mandates, transgender policies and teaching Critical Race Theory.

Murray Key and Anderson are both teachers; Murray Key is an adjunct professor of criminal justice studies at Piedmont Virginia Community College and Anderson teaches engineering at the University of Virginia. Both promised transparency, pledged to work with other school board members and to keep the students' best interest at the center of decisions.

In many minds - school boards, held under a microscope as they've been - make decisions that can ruin America or insure children are taught only the right stuff that meets the approval of every child's parent. A key part of the Virginia governor's race, which Glenn Youngkin won, was the role of parents in public school education.

School board meetings across the state have been full of people speaking their minds during public comments: most lining up with views of progressives or conservatives, the left or the right, Democrats or Republicans. And even though school board elections are required by law to be non-partisan that doesn't mean political parties can't endorse or support a candidate, according to the Virginia School Boards Associations candidate's guide.

The Point of Fork DAR Chapter, NSDAR laid a wreath at Point of Fork in Columbia on Oct. 12. A brief presentation about the Point of Fork arsenal included the story of a ride made by Jesse Thomas from his plantation (Royal Oaks) in Cumberland to Point of Fork on June 2, 1781 to warn General Baron von Steuben that the arsenal was about to be raided by the British. This was a ride similar to Jack Jouett's ride from Cuckoo to warn Thomas Jefferson that the British were on their way to Charlottesville. Jesse Thomas learned of the raid from a prisoner who had escaped from Cornwallis and had arrived at Royal Oaks with the news. Thomas immediately had his stallion, Fearnought, saddled and sat out in a pouring rain to Point of Fork, a distance of about 12 miles. The James River was swollen and the ferry was not able to run, so Thomas swam across the James on the back of his horse to warn von Steuben of the raid being planned by the British. The British did raid the arsenal and captured quite a few men and supplies, but von Steuben was also able to hide guns and supplies both in the James River and in the surrounding woods so all was not lost.

Fluco volleyball squad hit by turnaround loses 3-2 in playoffs

BY DUNCAN NIXON
CORRESPONDENT

The Fluco volleyball squad hosted Spotswood High on Nov. 2 in the opening round of the 3C volleyball play-offs. The Flucos got off to a strong start and it looked like they might have an easy time. Fluvanna won the first game by a convincing score of 25-11. In the second game, the Spotswood Blazers started to look more competitive, but the Flucos prevailed again 25-18. The third game of the match was a huge battle and with the score tied at 25-25, the Blazers managed to win two points in a row for a 27-25 victory. In the fourth game, the Blazers jumped into an early lead and the Flucos battled back, but ultimately fell 25-18. Since the teams split the first four games a final fifth game was in order and this game is played only to 15 points, win by two.

In the deciding contest, the Blazers again ran out to an early lead, but the Flucos came back strong to tie the game at 11-11, scoring their tying point on a block at the net by senior Khania Brassfield. The Blazers called time-out and came back to win the next four points for a 15-11 win. Unfortunately for the Flucos, who are coached by Christi Harlow-Garrett, a play-off loss ends the season.

In the first game of the match, the Fluco front line of Brassfield, senior Sophia Denby and junior Kayla Gentry appeared to be simply too powerful for the Blazers to handle. However, as the contest progressed, Coach Harlow-Garrett noted the Blazers got more comfortable and started to find openings in the Fluco defense. They also started blocking more effectively at the net to fend off some of the Flucos kill shots. Another factor may have been a Blazer injury. Late in the second game, their libero made a diving dig and injured her elbow. She did not return. This may have charged up the Blazers as they outscored the Flucos from that point on. Because the first game was a lopsided Fluco victory, Fluvanna actually scored eight more points than Spotswood on the night. But, Spotswood was able to gain three wins.

It was a long contest with a very high number of points recorded. As a result, the Flucos posted some very impressive statistics. Denby, who is the number one front line player for the Flucos, recorded a very impressive 20 kill shots. She was also voted Homecoming queen and was honored as such at the Homecoming football game. Gentry also had an outstanding game. She recorded 13 kill shots, had four blocks at the net and served five aces. Brassfield had six kills and four blocks at the net. The Flucos' primary setter is junior Faith Shields. She had a very impressive 40 assists. She also chipped in with two kills, 18 digs and two aces. Sophomore Isabell Garrett had six kill shots, 15 digs, two blocks and an ace. Junior Shelby Crawford contributed five kills, three blocks, six digs and an ace. Last, but certainly not least, freshman libero Jillian Davis had 25 digs for the Flucos.

Coach Harlow-Garrett, who has had a very impressive record at Fluvanna High, will be losing four seniors including two strong front-line players in Denby and Brassfield, but she has a strong returning contingent from a team that recorded 18 wins.

Fluvanna Faces – George Gorman

BY PAGE H. GIFFORD
CORRESPONDENT

Have you been a pastor most of your life?

I was in the military for four years and the business world for 26 years and I am in my 22nd year of pastoral ministry. I was 52 when I answered the call.

What else have you done in your life that you consider a milestone?

One of the most important things was becoming a grandfather fourteen years ago and then welcoming two more grandchildren for a total of three.

Where were you from originally? And what is the most memorable place you lived in and why?

I was born in Stuttgart, Germany, where my father was stationed, the first of many places, as I enjoyed life as an Army brat. I consider the most memorable place to be Palmyra, because I love the two churches that I pastor, Palmyra United Methodist Church and Haden Chapel United Methodist Church. Not to mention, this is a beautiful part of the country and we can't say enough about the people here. Therefore we have decided to make our home in this part of the country in Charlottesville when I finally retire the end of June, 2022.

Who are the most important people in your life?

The most important people in my life are of course my family and Rita (my wife) and I have a special part of our hearts reserved for our three grandchildren. And in addition our church families are very important to us.

What are your three favorite books and why?

I supposed most people say this, but on the top of my list is the Bible. It is a book I am engaged with on a regular basis and one in which I find great comfort and hope. After the Bible, for entertainment I love to read suspense novels, or these days I am enjoying listening to audio books via blue tooth.

What are your three favorite movies and why?

I am not much of a movie goer but since a kid I have always been enthralled with "Swiss Family Robinson." I loved the adventure and creativity of that movie, even though it is perhaps a little far-fetched. "It's a Wonderful Life," with Jimmy Stewart is high on my list. And in a different genre, I thoroughly enjoyed "Black Panther."

What is the one place you've never been to but would like to visit and why?

I have thought how neat it would be to visit all the different places I have lived through the years, but that said, I will be very content to enjoy our retirement in our home in downtown Charlottesville, and walk wherever I want, to drink a cup of coffee from one of the many coffee venues, read a book and enjoy the ebb and the flow of life.

If you were stranded on a dessert island who are the three people you would want with you?

The obvious answer is the people who love you the most and that is family. But exclusive of family, I want to be there with Tim and Jorja Stark, as long as they have their instruments, and play music. We have a little trio called "MTA," (Music through the Ages, covering music from the '20s through the '70s), made up of my accordion, Tim's ukuleles, and Jorja's snare drum, as we have fun making music together. Maybe you will see us on the downtown mall.

Which two historical figures would you like to have dinner with?

I don't know if I could eat in his presence, but wow, how special it would be to share a meal with Jesus. The other figure would be St. John Bosco, who founded the Salesian Order of priests and brothers. I think they have over 30,000 members around the world totally devoted to children of all ages, through education, shelter, and medical care. They do phenomenal work.

If you had to pick one person you would like to meet today, who would it be?

I know this is going to sound strange, but I don't much care about meeting one particular person, famous or not. I would just as soon make friends with a perfect stranger, just ordinary folks.

How do you view the role of the church in our current society?

I think churches should reach out first of all to their local community and then the broader community. I think churches should be a beacon of hope in the midst of the challenges of life. And I think churches should stay above the fray and be a place where all, without any exception whatsoever, are welcome.

What was the one thing you learned from living through this pandemic?

Wow! This pandemic has by far provided me with my greatest challenge as a pastor. It has been very difficult and at times very lonely, but thanks to the endless support of my congregations and their continued dedication to mission and ministry, we wake each day to serve God, as we see the light at the end of the tunnel. I would say that I have especially learned that in spite of suffering most human beings care about their neighbors and most human beings want to live righteous lives.

What do you do to relieve stress?

I guess in addition to playing my accordion and embracing books, my greatest stress reliever has become my workouts at the Spectrum Fitness Center, where I get that free and legal drug called dopamine. And quite honestly, I see a counselor on a regular basis, which has helped immensely. I highly recommend it for all human beings.

Free and open to the public

CONTRIBUTED BY EVELYN EDSON,
PRESIDENT, SCOTTSVILLE MUSEUM

Old Scottsville library.

"Free and Open to the Public," a new documentary by filmmaker, Lorenzo Dickerson, tells the story of the first hundred years of our public library, now called the Jefferson Madison Regional Library in Charlottesville. The film was shown to an appreciative audience at the Paramount Theatre recently and is paired with an exhibit at the Albemarle County Historical Society next door.

Scottsville was represented by our own chief librarian, Anne Lindberg, and by Ruth Klippstein who told an engaging story about the time a wolf came as a guest to the library.

Other dramatic Scottsville stories--the fire in 1980, the struggle to get a new library built not to mention the tornado last July that took off part of its roof--were not included. Over the years, the Scottsville Library has been an important community gathering place in town. When we first moved to Scottsville, it was one of the first places we went and still go.

Back in the 1970s and '80s, Springtree Community ran a Friday night movie program at the Scottsville Library. One night each month was reserved for children's movies and always drew a big crowd. On the first night of each month, we showed films in a series. Over the years we watched all of Kenneth Clark's Civilisation, Jacob Bronowski's history of science series, Ascent of Man, not to mention a complete run of the Flash Gordon movies. Most of our films came from the Virginia State Library collection. Our Friday night programs came to an end in 1990, as more and more people acquired their own video machines, and when the State Library stopped sending out movies to us.

The all-time biggest crowd we ever had was for "The Making of Star Wars," a documentary. I particularly enjoyed the wild-life movies: "Castles of Clay," about termites; "Caravan du Sel," the salt caravan that traversed the Sahara desert; and the many films by Joan and Allan Root. We once watched a film about coral reefs with long, lulling footage of fish swimming slowly back and forth. That time, not only the youngest children fell asleep, but most of the adults as well. We were awakened only by the flapping of the end of the film reel.

Board to Explore Solutions for Security

Can we save the Lake Monticello Police Department, affected by staff shortage? Nationwide, police departments have experienced a decline in recruitment. LMOA salaries are not competitive, making our police force unattractive to new recruits. During the regular Board of Directors meeting on October 28, our Directors voiced the need to explore effective solutions, including the option of contracting private security.

During a visit to Lake of the Woods, LMOA Staff and BOD representatives witnessed firsthand several of the benefits of contracting out security. At Lake of the Woods, contractor Allied Universal Security Services provides security 24 hours a day. Their registered Special Conservators of the Peace (SCOP) officers are authorized by the Orange County Sheriff and appointed by a Circuit Court to perform specific duties within the specified

LOWA geographic area as defined by the Circuit Court. SCOP officers must complete regular training and reregister annually through the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS). Their training and registration permits them to carry a firearm and their duties include enforcement of local and state laws, including traffic violations. Other duties include controlling entrance access, providing seasonal boat patrols, investigating member complaints, and providing assistance to the Orange County Sheriff's Office and other law enforcement agencies. It provides more officers, including

advertorial

850 hours of Lake patrol and a mix of both conservancy (armed officers) and compliance officers at a similar cost to what we budget for our police department. Additionally, the contractor offers programs such as a successful youth engagement program and hires, trains, and insures the officers, relieving our membership of that responsibility. This is just one option the Board wishes to explore. Another option may be to raise the salaries for police officers significantly. In the coming months, LMOA will provide its members with a comprehensive comparison between the service provided by our current police force and a contractor. All members are welcome to submit viewpoints and arguments to the board by emailing feedback to: securitysolutions@lmoa.net.

Potty Talk

The Marina restrooms have been updated and look great. Though they are not ADA-compliant (as the layout of the building does not allow for that kind of modification), they do feature ADA fixtures.

The much-anticipated restrooms on Beach 4 will be ADA-compliant. The Environmental Control Committee has the designs for review, and Maintenance expects the restrooms to be built in time for the next summer season. As for the current season, the restrooms at Beach 1 are winterized and will remain closed until the Spring.

Water Safety Town Hall January 19, 2022

More Lake patrol could assist in another popular topic at the Lake: water safety. Increased traffic of inexperienced boaters, both motorized and non-motorized, attracted attention this past summer. Many residents have voiced strong opinions about the lack of sufficient water safety patrol. In response, our Board of Directors voted to hold a Water Safety Town Hall on January 19 to give all LMOA members a fair opportunity to voice concerns and suggestions in search of a solution before the next summer season. Members can sign up to speak or submit feedback to the Board using the email address watersafety@lmoa.org. On <http://lmoa.news> we hear from some of our neighbors who can't wait to attend. Here's a short summary:

"I will definitely attend," says the 13-year-old Max Kofler. "I love to paddle and wakeboard. I want to make sure I can continue to enjoy all of my water sports in a way that is safe for everyone."

According to his father Joe, wakeboarders and wake surfers are some of the most mindful and respectful boaters on our Lake. "As a parent and experienced boater, I take safety seriously," Joe shares. "To wakeboard, you have to go in a straight line at a maximum speed of 19 mph. Also, wakesurfing is a safe, child-friendly sport with a top speed of 10mph. It takes a high level of skill to do it right. Tubing and water skiing need higher speeds, up to 36 mph. I feel tubers are most responsible for close proximity to docks and shorelines due to the zigzag travel needed to maximize their pull."

Close to Van Buren Cove, waterfront owner Judy Strock witnesses the same sort of behavior. "Someone needs to address the lack of respect for safety by motorized boats, especially some boaters who want their tubers and skiers to enjoy a high-speed, bouncy thrill at this final turn buoy. During one of the holidays, my dock got such a pounding my 300 lbs. wooden steps came loose. I'm afraid to swim there."

She suggests the turn buoy at the Van Buren Cove in front of her property be moved half a mile to give her and her neighbors, 'slow' boats and swimmers more room. "If my request isn't a good fit, I hope better and more frequent water safety patrol is considered before someone gets seriously injured. State laws are being ignored that need to be enforced."

The Board of Directors is determined to give all Lakers a fair chance to get involved. LMOA Vice President Judy Fish says, "We know that if we work on water safety as a community, we will come up with a plan that will help us move forward to allow many more safe and happy seasons on Lake Monticello," she adds.

LMOA members can attend, speak or submit feedback by emailing to watersafety@lmoa.org. Read the whole story on <http://lmoa.news>.

Lakers Unite to Protect Surrounding Greenspace

The conclusion is undeniable: as a community, we strongly oppose the proposed Village Gardens development. Thanks to the hard work of our Community Developments Working Group, our feedback was effectively consolidated, leading to the Board's decision to authorize President Larry Henson to express LMOA's opposition to the proposed project at all relevant County hearings. This was truly a community collaboration. The group consisted of Board and LMOA Staff representatives as well as several LMOA members who met multiple times in the month of October. Many residents took the opportunity to attend meetings and submit feedback via email. The message was loud and clear: LMOA members are against Village Gardens, a proposed development that could hold up to 355 residential units on approximately 120 acres that touch Tufton Pond. The group found that the proposal carries significant, negative impacts on our community such as increased traffic volume, an overwhelmed water and sewer service, erosion that affects our Lake watershed and ecosystem, and suppression of our fire and safety services.

Because LMOA must ensure the safety of its residents, the Board agreed to represent the community as a whole, framing LMOA's stance and communicating it to the relevant authorities.

Plentiful harvests expected for Va. cotton, peanuts

VA FARM BUREAU

Following a year plagued with wet weather and numerous setbacks, Virginia cotton and peanut farmers are anticipating a successful fall harvest.

In its crop production forecast released Oct. 12, the National Agricultural Statistics Service reported Virginia farmers expected to harvest 133 million pounds of peanuts this year, up 19% from last year. Cotton production also is projected to increase drastically at 160,000 bales, a 26% upturn from 2020.

In Southeast Virginia, "we caught some showers and rain on a regular basis that areas west of us missed, which helped to fill out those crops," said Mike Parrish, a Virginia Cooperative Extension agent in Dinwiddie County.

"It's been a good season for peanuts—nice and dry for easy harvesting," he added. "There've been a few challenges with some cotton growing again due to the hotter weather, but other than that, we're just waiting on the bolls to open up and the lint to fluff out. Farmers should be out picking in the next week or so."

According to the NASS crop progress report from Oct. 17, Virginia's entire peanut crop is in fair or better condition, with 85% rated good or excellent.

Fifty-five percent of the state's peanuts have been harvested this fall—a 31% increase from this time last year and a 3% increase over the five-year average.

Dell Cotton, executive director of the Virginia Peanut Growers Association, said it could be a banner year for peanut farmers.

"I don't see why our farmers can't match what USDA has us projected at, which is to produce 4,600 pounds to the acre," he noted. "This year has been very similar to 2019, which was when we set the current record at 4,650 pounds produced per acre. Give us one more week, and I expect we'll be close to that number again."

Cotton said Southeast Virginia has avoided drought conditions that have affected most of the state throughout summer and early fall, and that has created suitable growing conditions for peanuts and cotton.

Virginia's cotton harvest is only 18% complete, but 97% of the crop is in fair to excellent condition, and 69% is in good or excellent condition.

Suffolk farmer Joseph Barlow, who serves on the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation Cotton Advisory Committee, explained it's too early to predict how the state's cotton crop will pan out.

However, he mentioned an above-average crop year is within reach if dry and mild weather continues, which would be a boon for growers who took a loss last year.

"That would be phenomenal," Barlow said. "There were many people, ourselves included, who were hurt bad last year.

And with prices where they're at right now, there's money to be made with a decent crop."
