Celebrating school's good news

BY RUTHANN CARR
CORRESPONDENT

Brenna Kidd-Bania: I Don't See Color

senior Brenna Kidd-Bania at Thursday's (March 10) school board meeting.

Gretz said Kidd-Bania won first place in the VSBA Spring Art Competition's Central Region for her colorful painting of a Black man.

"I called it 'I Don't See Color,' because when people say they don't see color, they're saying they don't see people of color because it's an integral part of who they are," Kidd-Bania said.

More good news came with the report of the average daily attendance: February's was 89.83 percent; up from January's 86.56 percent.

The Board also heard specifics about summer school:

- 55 teachers will instruct 250 students (last year 39/185);
- May 31 - June 30, 8 a.m. - 2:30 p.m., four days per week;
- Lunch will be provided free of charge;
- Regional/neighborhood pick-up and drop-off sites;
- Students will attend their home school;
- K-7 Staff will identify students in need at each grade level in the areas of reading and math. Invitations will be sent to identified students;
- Grades 8-12: Students who are in need of credit recovery and SOL remediation will be invited to participate. End-of-Course

SOL tests will be administered to students in need of retakes;

- One classroom teacher per eight students in Grades K-8. One classroom teacher per 10 students in Grades 9-12.

In other business:

CATEC Director Stephanie Carter made a presentation to the Board.

The career and technical center was created to serve Albemarle and Charlottesville students.

Out-of-district students can apply.

It costs those students $2,000 to attend, which includes tuition, uniforms, and certification testing.

Board member Andrew Pullen (Columbia) said he wanted to open a conversation about CATEC, Fluvanna and other local, county schools sharing resources.

"CATEC has some programs Fluvanna and others don't have, but each of the other schools has programs unique to their school," Pullen said.

Gretz said the federally sponsored free school lunch program for all students will stop at the end of this school year.

In the past when students paid for lunch, Fluvanna schools ended the year with up to $40,000 in cafeteria debt. FCPS had to absorb the debt or try to collect it.

"(The) law now says we can't collect that debt," Gretz said.

Want some good news? Look no further than Fluvanna schools.

Don Stribling, executive director, human resources, operations, and student services, is responsible for many things COVID-19 related at the schools: vaccinations, data, reporting.

He had great news for the week of Feb. 28.

"No reported cases this week which is a first in almost two years," Stribling said in an email to staff.

That news was followed up with Superintendent Peter Gretz recognizing high school

Obituary

Dennis Paine

Dennis Audron Paine was born February 9, 1942 and passed away from complications of heart disease on January 7, 2022, one month short of his 80th birthday.

Dennis was born to Audron and Louise Read Paine in Scotia, California, joining his older brother Tom, followed by his younger brother Victor. He attended Scotia Elementary and Fortuna Union High School, Class of 1960. Dennis loved the time spent at the ranch at Camp Grant, home of his grandparents and later his parents.

Dennis enlisted in the U.S. Marines, serving in Hawaii, Saudi Arabia and Vietnam. He became a telecommunications technologist. He graduated from the University of Hawaii earning a degree in business, later studied telecommunications at George Washington University. Dennis worked for the U.S. Government in Saudi Arabia, San Diego, the Pentagon in Washington D.C., and many Department of Defense contractors. He traveled to many assignments in foreign nations throughout his career.

Dennis retired from civil service in 2012 and enjoyed fine dining, wine, and traveling, especially to Europe. After retiring, Dennis resided in Palmyra, near Charlottesville, Virginia. He was a proud Marine and veteran, and joined American Legion Post #74 in Charlottesville. He was a member of The Dogwood Vietnam Memorial, the Central VA Veterans Group, Lake Monticello and Fluvanna Conservatives Club, Fluvanna County Republicans, Marine Corp League.

Dennis was predeceased by his parents Audron and Louise Paine, by his brother Tom, a retired Marine, and his brother Victor, a Marine killed in Vietnam in 1966. Dennis is survived by a niece and nephew, numerous cousins, and many good friends from his world travels.

Private family graveside service will be held at a later date. Please make memorial donations to your local veterans' organization. Condolences may be sent to family at P.O. Box 944, Ferndale, CA 95536.

Letter to the editor

Defending Rep. Good

Last week's writer to the editor stated that he was forced to flee his home when the Russians invaded it. He gives credit to Ronald Reagan, the president at that time, for standing up to the Russians. Our current president stands for nothing except his ties to China. We have heard about the funding and support that America is sending to Ukraine so do you want a full military war sending our arms and precious young men and women to battle with Russia? We had a secure boarder when Ronald Reagan was in office. Now we don't.

HB6648 states that we first we secure our southern borders before we spend money and lives defending a border (in Ukraine) thousands of miles away. U.S. Rep. Bob Good wants to stand for protecting this country's borders so that military forces can return home to America, not just another District of Central America.

Can you even recall when Mr. Good ever was showboating? I ask that you find one incident where Mr. Bob Good was not acting in the best interest of all of the 5th. District including Fluvanna County, even the uninformed people.

My wife and I will vote for Congressman Good.

-Mr. and Mrs. James Winsett, Fork Union

Artist talks about her passion

BY PAGE H. GIFFORD
CORRESPONDENT

Mary Volin recently moved to the area from Maine and was looking for artists like herself. She joined the Fluvanna Art Association and now that COVID appears to be manageable, she is looking forward to getting more involved with the group and the artistic community.

"It has been fun to connect with a new group of local artists and be inspired by a new landscape," Volin said. She said she comes from a family of artists on her father's side but remembers her grandfather telling her at a young age that there were easier ways to make a living. Therefore, she chose not to pursue art in college though her underlying passion told her this is what she wanted. While staying at home and raising her children, she took classes for fun and was encouraged to pursue art more seriously.

"I took a deep breath and in my mid-thirties went back to school for a BFA," she said. "I wanted to paint, but needed to put back the money I raided from my kids' college fund, so I pursued a major in graphic design and a minor in photography. I ended up working professionally as an art director and creative director for collectible and social expression companies in Maine."

When Volin retired, she wanted to have fun with art and do something hands-on, but she wasn't sure what that was. About 15 years ago, her mother-in-law invited her to paint a scarf with her at her retirement community.

"The minute I watched that paint flow on the silk, I was hooked," she said. "Silk painting has been described as "watercolor on steroids." Not only has she worked on silk but she has worked on cotton as well. "You don't exactly work on fabric, you work with it."

She says there are so many techniques for achieving different goals. Among her favorite techniques is Serti. Originating in Thailand, Vietnam, and India, it is an age-old technique for preventing color from bleeding by using resist lines. It uses dyes instead of fabric paint. Once the pattern is drawn, silk is laid over it, and resist lines – known as gutta – are applied to preserve the white space in the design.

She has also explored various Shibori sophisticated tie-dye techniques, hand printing, and vat dyeing. Originating in China, it was adopted by the Japanese. Labor-intensive in the preparation before dyeing, it calls for a variety of ways to create patterns by folding, pleating, tying, or sewing.

"There is no end to things to explore and I love to experiment," she said. Volin's work is vibrant and bright with bold patterns and colors and is a complement to any outfit.

In Maine, Volin belonged to a marketing co-op where she sold her scarfs, pillows, table runners, and fabric wall art. One of her pieces was published in Art Quilts International, Abstract & Geometric by Martha Sielman.

"Currently I hope to focus more on wall art while continuing to make the scarfs and decorative items I love." Some of her work will soon be available at Sweet Art Emporium.

Woodson wraps up Fluco swimming career

BY JOHN HARVEY
THE DAILY PROGRESS

Ahmad Woodson has been the face of the Fluvanna County High School boys swimming program for the past four years.

The senior standout hopes to have a similar impact at the college level after committing to swim at the University of Lynchburg.

"To have an opportunity to compete at the next level of my swimming career is first giving honor to God that I never gave up, even when challenges beyond my control came my way that I would be considered from all the coaches that saw something in me that would impact their roster from the Class of 2022," Woodson said. "Knowing that I have not even scratched the surface in my swimming career, I want to continue becoming the greatest swimmer that I can be by putting in the hard work through my dedication to the sport."

Woodson wrapped up a sensational swimming career at Fluvanna County as one of the most decorated athletes in program history. Last month, he placed in four events to help the Flucos capture the Region 3C swimming and diving title for the first time in program history.

He followed that up with another solid showing at the VHSL Class 3 swimming championships, where he finished fourth in the 500-yard freestyle (4:23.59) and added a seventh-place effort in the 200-yard freestyle (1:48.21). He also owns program records in both events.

Those performances made Woodson an attractive option to college swimming programs. He had interest from several programs, including Randolph College, Roanoke College, Marymount University, Washington & Jefferson College (Penn.), Notre Dame College (Ohio) and Wingate University.

After the state meet, Woodson evaluated all the options and felt that Lynchburg was the place he wanted to continue his swimming career.

"I was ready to make my decision to which team I felt was hungry and ready for the next level that I would be able to contribute to the process as a first-year swimmer, making history," he said.

Woodson credited his relationship with Hornets Coach Brad Dunn and his staff, as well as the members of the Lynchburg swim team for making him feel right at home.

"Being wanted by the coaches and swimmers as a contributor to help build the team growth from a fairly new program under Coach Dunn, I needed to feel the connection from the team as a family member, not a teammate," Woodson said. "After experiencing my first overnight recruiting visit this past summer with the team, my future brothers of UL kept the line of communication open by checking on my swimming, grades, well-being — with no pressure, just support — throughout the biggest decision of my life."

Another draw to Lynchburg was the educational offerings. Woodson believes the balance between academics and swimming will allow him to grow in both phases and enjoy the collegiate athlete experience.

Athletically, Woodson will likely continue to compete in the middle-distance events in the freestyle and breaststroke.

Academically, he plans to major in marketing with a minor in digital media marketing.

"I would like to become a member of the marketing team with MotorSports magazine because of my love and passion for sports cars," Woodson said. "It would allow me to see it through a different lens of professionalism."

In the pool, Woodson is eager to maximize his talent.

"My goals are to reach the next level by learning and understanding the transition from high school to college is not going to be a walk in the park," Woodson said, "but with the resources from my coaches, teammates and professors, it's going to allow me to be successful in the classroom as a student and in and out of the pool as a swimmer."

Woodson also credits his support staff for helping him achieve his goal.

"I would like to thank my parents, Loretta Woodson and Abbas Hakeem, especially my mom for always being my mentor from pushing me to never give up in the classroom, as well as the pool, by reminding me that nothing comes easy, but if you work hard with self-determination and passion, the end results will be in your favor," he said. "To the coaches that I have had the opportunity to train with for the past 10 years, starting at nine years old from Fluvanna to Charlottesville, thanks for everything. The fun part of swimming is always the friendships that are built on your current team and that will push you to be fast."

3 Questions to Ask Before You Expand Your Business

Your business is profitable, and the demand is strong for your services. The future looks bright. Is it time to expand? Part of the answer depends on intangible factors such as your vision for the company's future and your personality traits.

For instance, if you hate to travel, expanding the business's physical presence into a different geographical market could lead to burnout and an ultimate lack of success. But taking on a partner, merging with a rival, or purchasing an existing firm in a complementary niche market may be expansion alternatives that are suited to your strengths.

Here are three important questions to consider when you're thinking about expanding your business:

- 1. How will you finance the expansion?
Expansion costs could include increased inventory, a larger facility and more equipment. After assessing your current financial situation, you may determine cash on hand can cover some or all of these costs. If not, you might be able to raise the required cash by tightening your receivables cycle along with improved collections. Perhaps your vendors will offer flexibility in extending payment terms and credit availability to ease cash flow problems caused by upfront costs of growth. If additional financing is required, think about your comfort level with taking on debt or giving up part of your equity. Balance emotional aspects with the realization that prudent borrowing can benefit your business by providing liquidity to grow your income. Likewise, investors who supply cash in return for a stake in your business may also be a source of sound advice and managerial guidance.
- 2. Will you need additional staff?
Payroll can be expensive and paperwork
- 3. Will the benefits outweigh the costs?
Financial projections can help you determine whether sales and profits will make the expansion worthwhile. But also take into account why you started your business and what customers expect from you. Providing personalized service may prove difficult as your business grows, making customers unhappy. Yet choosing to remain static exposes you to the risk of competition from larger companies or losing customers as their needs outgrow your capabilities. Expansion decisions present both challenges and opportunities. Call today for help planning for success as you're working through the financial steps of growing your business.

As always, should you have any questions or concerns regarding your tax situation please feel free to call. Working with business owner is a part of our reason to go into this business. ## Fluvanna Faces: Eric Agee

BY HARVEY J. SORUM

Tell me a little about your background.

I'm a 17 year culinary veteran and I'm only 31. Started from McDonalds, Dairy Queen, Burger King and worked my way up to being a sorority and fraternity chef, sous chef and then to executive chef manager positions at the University of Virginia. Born and raised in Fluvanna and attended Fluvanna schools.

When did you start Agee's Catering and why?

I started Agee's Catering in 2010 after my dad passed away. I started the business for two main reasons. One of which was to do something positive with my life and make my mother proud. The other reason was to fill the need for a late night food establishment in Fluvanna. Something that would be affordable, convenient and would remind you of home.

How did your interest in cooking for others start?

My interest for cooking came from my grandmother Martha Turner. She was known for feeding every guest that came by her house. It was her way of showing love and giving. I share the same passion.

Why did you locate your business in Fluvanna County?

My business is located in Fluvanna because it is my home place and where I want my legacy to be rooted.

Being in the restaurant/food catering business demands long hours of work. Is this true?

Yes, being in food service is very demanding. The hours are even longer when you are the owner operator. You have to love what you do. Nothing fills my heart more than hearing that someone enjoyed the meal, it's priceless.

Are culinary skills, determination, and grace under fire helpful to the success of your business and if so, why?

Yes, very much so! You have to have a good balance of all attributes to make things work.

Some people just don't have the ability to do all of that at one time. That's what makes a true food service person so valued.

Do you run your business alone or do you have help especially when you're catering a large event?

Yes, I run my truck solo. It's hard to find people/employees that will work the business and show the customers the needed service to be successful. So therefore, it's sometimes easier just to tough it out yourself. I do have workers for special catering and weddings but none are full time.

Does the Commonwealth of Virginia regulate your business in any way?

Yes, we work hand in hand with the VDH Health Department. We take pride in having a trusted relationship. Our current licenses are good through the end of this year. We are committed to keeping our customers safe and happy.

How have you found the best way of advertising Agee's Catering?

By word of mouth and social media. Both have been key to my business and getting my services in front of new customers.

Have your growth goals been met?

When I started I had a tent and a table, then worked and bought a small trailer unit. Ten years later I'm proud to say I have a hot dog cart, two food trucks and I'm working on building out a brick and mortar commercial kitchen.

What has been your favorite type of catering – weddings, business gatherings, public events?

I enjoy all aspects of the business but I must say I get a lot of enjoyment out of the food truck. I love interacting with people and building lasting relationships by sharing my passion through food.

Would you agree that the catering business requires a great deal of organization and planning skills, plus a commitment to being on time?

I totally agree. If you get that down pat, you will be really successful in this business!

Anything you'd like to add?

If you are in need of anything food service don't hesitate to contact us. Big or small we do it all. End to end customizable menus to fit you needs. Please contact us ageecatering101@gmail.com or Agee Snack Bar on FB or IG. Thank you so much for the opportunity and see you at the next event!

Modified Village Gardens plan to move forward

BY HEATHER MICHON
CORRESPONDENT

The Planning Commission unanimously approved a request from Southern Development on Tuesday (March 8) to move forward with a project that would bring four dozen new homes to the Village Gardens property on Rt. 53.

The 116-acre parcels were originally proposed for over 300 homes and an adjoining commercial development but failed to win zoning approval after months of debate and public outcry. Residents were concerned about the impact of such a large development on local traffic and infrastructure.

Under county ordinances, Southern Development has the right to build a limited number of homes per acre without the need for the types of permissions and ordinances required for large developments.

By right, the developer is permitted to build one single-family home per two acres on land zoned as A-1(Agricultural). At least 75 percent of the total property has to remain as open space.

Southern Development's plan shows 48 homes on 23 acres, with 93.8 acres left as open space with just one home site. This leaves 20 percent for housing and 80 percent for open space.

Director of Community Planning Douglas Miles told the commission that the initial sketch plan meets the criteria for a rural cluster subdivision.

The commission approved the sketch plan request by a vote of 5-0.

RESIDENT ADVISORY BOARD APPOINTMENTS

Members spent much of the meeting discussing resident appointments to county and regional advisory groups focused on planning and development. The final list of appointments are:

- Overton McGehee, Kathy Swenson Miller, Suzy Morris, Marvin Moss, and Gibson Worsham will join the Rural Crossroads Area & Rural Preservation Advisory Group;
- Joshua Bower, Steven Hurwitz, Andy Sorrell, and Steve Smith will join the Zion Crossroads Gateway Plan Stakeholders Group;
- Donna D'Aguzzo, Judith Mickelson, Marvin Moss, Deborah Murdock, and Haden Parrish are appointed to the Fluvanna County Historical Preservation Advisory Group.

Fluco baseball team is young and talented

BY DUNCAN NIXON
CORRESPONDENT

Weather permitting, the Fluco baseball season is already underway. Coach Joel Gray is looking forward to a successful season, but can't be sure how things will work out, due to the considerable youth of his squad. The team has only four seniors and has eight players returning. The rest of the squad are first timers and the Fluco coaches are still not sure who of the newcomers will be "grinders" who can make significant contributions.

The pitching staff looks strong and that is always a key factor. Two returning juniors have already committed to Division 1 programs. Joe Gomez has committed to Virginia Commonwealth University and J. J. Glasscock will be off to West Virginia. Gray said that these two both have high velocity fastballs (Glasscock over 90 mph and Gomez close behind) and can deliver four different pitches. They will be complemented on the mound by junior left hander Nathan Gregg and hard throwing freshman Camdyn Via, who may be used primarily as the team's closer.

Gray's infield will be a mix of experienced players and youngsters. Two first basemen will be senior Grant Brown and sophomore Maddox Warren. Brown will be playing in his third sport of the school year. He was an outstanding lineman on the football team, a valuable back-up forward on the basketball squad and now a first baseman on the baseball team. At second base, Gray will have senior Tristan Chisholm and freshman Christian Lounsbury. Patrolling the left side of the infield will be sophomore Ryan Mann at shortstop and Via at third when he is not on the mound.

When the pitchers listed above are not on the mound, they will be Gray's outfielders. Behind the plate Gray believes he is especially strong. Junior B.B. Cox can hit and is solid on defense. Two freshmen are also promising receivers. Gray noted that Cody Peck and Thomas Custer have good potential.

Not surprisingly Gray, who has a state championship on his resume, said that he will emphasize pitching and defense. Those are the things that win ball games. Of course, a team also has to score some runs. In a recent scrimmage, Gray said that the Flucos faced a pitcher who had 90 plus speed and they managed base runners and had only a few strike-outs. That is a positive sign. The Flucos play in the tough Jefferson District and several of the schools they go up against have significantly larger student bodies to draw upon, but the Flucos have always been very competitive in baseball. Gray said that a tough opponent this year will be Western Albemarle, which is not one of the really big schools. This year may not be a big year by the Fluco's past standards -- that remains to be seen. But look out in 2023.

The Flucos were scheduled to play at Albemarle and at Louisa early this week. Their home opener is scheduled for Friday, March 18 against, non-Jefferson District, Chancellor High. Of course, early season games are always subject to possible weather cancellations.

Flucos have two Jefferson District first team selections

BY DUNCAN NIXON
CORRESPONDENT

The Fluco boys basketball team was a guard oriented squad all season. Not surprisingly, its guards won Jefferson District honors. Senior Kobe Edmonds and junior Bobby Gardner were named to the All-Jefferson District first team. Junior guard Lance Bruce was named to the second team.

Q: WHAT IS EQUITY?

A: The difference between what you owe on your mortgage and what your home is worth. Home values increased an average of 18% in 2021, so you probably have lots of equity!
